Chicago, Oct. 31.—There is a likelihood that the May wheat future will become as tight as the December is now shown to be. The various countries across the ocean have bought considerable May wheat of late, they have kept a close watch for the weak spots on which to make purchases and frequently on advances they have absorbed large offerings. Great Britain is probably the largest holder of May future at Chicago. German, Dutch and Italian speculators have bought liberally and they are now the principal longs. When the month of May rolls around they will demand delivery of the same.

The Dutch government has bought considerable flour during the last few weeks and the British commission, as well as the Italians, have taken goodly amounts of both wheat and corn. As is now being done by Great Britain and its allies in the December future, May will be traded for the cash article later on.

Thus, were delines of biables in wheat here to.

being done by Great Britain and its allies in the December future, May will be traded for the cash article later on.

There were declines of 'sai'sc in wheat here today. Cash sales in all positions amounted to upwards of 2,000,000 boshels.

While the corn market showed but little net change for the day the nearby futures were % to %c higher, the deferred were % lower. The strength in corn was disappointing to the bears as they expected to see prices alump under a promise of an increase in the movement of the new crop. Adverse reports were still received from Argentina. Cash sales here today were 35,000 bushels.

Declines of %asks were made in oats. Sales of cash today and yesterday amounted to 1,000,000 bushels, wholly for export.
